Introduction

The primary goal of the Heartland Sexual Assault Policies & Prevention on Campuses Project (Heartland Project) is to increase post-secondary institutions' adoption of a comprehensive, gender-centered public health framework to sexual assault campus policy and prevention strategies, funded through a three year federal grant from the Office on Women's Health, Department of Health & Human Services. The Heartland Project's regionally focused approach aims to build and strengthen institutional capacity and momentum to prevent and respond to sexual assault at eight campus partners in Kansas, Missouri and Nebraska. In the Spring of 2017, the Heartland Project conducted a Sexual Assault & Violence Survey to provide the university with important information on campus sexual assault.

Below we provide a brief description of the survey instrument and procedures, and an overview of the data presented in this report. Any questions regarding this report should be directed to Dr. Alesha Doan, Principal Investigator and Project Director, at adoan@ku.edu.

Survey Instrument & Procedures

The Heartland Project was responsible for the selection and administration of the survey instrument, the ARC3. The ARC3 is one of the most highly recommended surveys in the field of sexual assault on college campuses, and was developed by a team of experts including administrators, advocates, and researchers. After selection of the survey instrument, the Heartland Project secured Institutional Review Board approval for this research study from the University of Kansas Human Subject Committee. Individual campus partners were included as institutional partners, and administrative approval through defined mechanisms was received by participating partner institutions.

The ARC3 survey measures several domains of students' attitudes, experiences, and behaviors, including knowledge of bystander interventions, perspectives on sexual consent, prevalence and scope of victimization and perpetration of sexual violence, perceptions of safety, and knowledge of campus resources. This data will provide valuable information to the Heartland Project partner campuses to assist them in creating effective sexual assault prevention strategies and response policies that address their specific student population.

Student safety and confidentiality were prioritized throughout the research process. The Heartland Project used the secure online platform Qualtrics for survey administration. In order to protect the confidentiality of the respondents, student identification numbers, names, and email addresses were not collected as part of the survey. In addition, respondents were provided contact information to counseling services and options for reporting incidences of sexual assault.

At the University of Kansas, all student populations on the KU Lawrence campus were given the opportunity to complete the survey. A recruitment email was distributed to all undergraduate and graduate students at this location. The message included an invitation to participate in the study, information about their rights as a research participant and the link to the survey website. Student participants had access to the survey for four weeks. At the beginning of each week the Heartland Project sent an email reminder. Student groups and administration used social media to publicize the survey. A lottery type approach to prize distribution was used to encourage student participation. Completion of the survey was not a requirement to enter the lottery.

Data Presented in Report Part III

Part III of the report presents an overview of students' satisfaction with their life and with their university, the prevalence of stalking, and the prevalence of domestic violence, students' alcohol usage, and students' perception of campus safety. These results are intended to aid University of Kansas in the development of prevention programs.

Module 2- Alcohol Use

Students were asked the following question first:

People drink alcohol in bars, with meals, in restaurants, at sporting events, at home while watching TV, and in many other places. By a drink we mean half an ounce of alcohol, which would be a 12-ounce can or glass of beer or cooler, a 5-ounce glass of wine, or a drink containing 1 shot of liquor.
